In spite of experiencing a fourth wave of the COVID-19 pandemic, the world is now more optimistic regarding the way forward; increased levels of vaccination and standardization of health and safety procedures gradually boost confidence in air travel and allow the industry to think about how to build back better.

The 2022 Air Transport Symposium entitled: “The New Era: Building the Future of Air Transport” hosts leading executives in the airline and airport sectors who will focus on this very issue of reshaping the future of air transport in a creative yet realistic setting.
